SHAPE OF progress is recorded at the $79,000 addition to the sewage disposal plant at Jamestown. The circular, finned object is a new aerating tank. Water is flowing through the old section of the plant which has been remodeled under the project. As final step, waste matter will be pumped out into leaching beds, for which the valves can be seen, and dried under sunlight. The aerated water is pumped back into the creek. (Guardian Photos.)

Beauty Lurking In New Sewage Plant

Beauty lurks in odd places. This week a Guardian photographer wandered through the about-to-open addition to Jamestown's sewage disposal plant and recorded interplay of light and shadows on the shining new shapes of progress.

The new equipment means that the capacity of the plant has been more than doubled—from a maximum of 80,000 gallons daily to 200,000 gallons.

During peak loads, the old plant was fed almost twice as much as it could handle.

The Leach Brothers contracting company of Bellfontaine is almost completed with its work at the enlarged plant which is part of $100,000 outlay which included the laying of new sewer lines in the Hornberger Addition and on Xenia avenue.

Today the only thing that stands between opening up the new portion of the plant is the erection of a hand rail, painting, and a few minor details.

Floyd LeFever, Leach Brothers foreman, estimated that the plant would be ready to roll in a week.

Meanwhile, village officials are cooking up a ceremony for the throwing of the switch that will channel flow into the new section of the plant.

During the construction process which has been underway since last May the sewage has, at times, been pumped into the creek behind the plant site creating both an unsanitary and odiferous condition.

The new plant will not produce a disagreeable odor, LeFever said. If there is any odor at all, he said, it will be a over-sweet smell.

Cost of the addition to the sewage plant is $79,000.

178 Sign Up In Soil Bank

A total of 178 Greene County farmers had signed 1957 agreements to put corn land in the soil bank reserve as the deadline passed Friday.

Manager of the ASC office, Delmer L. Bone, reported that the agreements took in 2196.9 acres. If farmers comply with the program they will be eligible to earn a maximum of $114,508.60.

Thirty-nine farms offered more acreage than could be accepted under the initial sign-up, Bone said. If the addition acreage is approved it would amount to 475.9 acres and would raise the total maximum compensation to $141,153.60.

MANHUNT CALLED

Attack Fells Hill On Fishing Jaunt

Funeral services were scheduled Thursday for Fred Hill who died suddenly Monday afternoon on a fishing excursion to Caesar's Creek.

A rain-drenched searching party of 30, aided by the Beaver Creek emergency squad searchlights, combed the area in vain Monday night for Mr. Hill's body.

The search was kicked off when Mrs. Hill became uneasy when her husband did not return home by dark from his normal afternoon fishing excursion.

Neighbors Howard and Ivan Tidd contacted Police Chief Howard Wright and the volunteer searchers were called in after Wright discovered the Hill automobile locked and parked on the Hoop Road.

The night search was called off at 3 a.m. Tuesday and resumed with daylight. Mr. Hill's body was found at 7:25 a.m. Tuesday morning.

He had apparently been stricken by a heart attack while returning from the creek to his car.

Services for the retired mail carrier were scheduled for Thursday at the Turner Miller Funeral Home in Hillsboro with burial following there. Mr. Hill was a native of near Hillsboro.

Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Cora Hill; a daughter, Mrs. Louis Chaney, Dayton; two sons, Frederick of Springfield; and Carl of Dayton; and five grandchildren.

Phone Base Is Extended

The Jamestown base rate boundary will be extended to include approximately 50 subscribers who are now paying mileage charges, H. B. Johnston, Xenia Commercial Manager of Ohio Bell Telephone Company announced today.

This boundary revision will become effective March 15, 1957 and for the most part includes the areas along South Charleston Road and State Route 72 from their junction north to Greeneview Drive. Additions to the base rate area will also be made on the east, south and west edges of the village.

The present mileage charges now being paid by subscribers within these areas will be discontinued as of March 16, Johnston stated.

Further boundary revisions will be made as soon as cable facilities become available whereby a number of subscribers now residing in the rural area will be offered 1, 2, and 4 party grades of service at rates slightly higher than they are now paying for 8 party service.

This is a part of Ohio Bell's expansion program to provide better service to our customers at reasonable rates Johnston stated.

In addition, Johnston said, a zone area is being established around Jamestown which will mean a mileage rate reduction to approximately 60 subscribers. Telephone subscribers in the zone area will pay a standard mileage rate for one-quarter of a mile.

DIAMOND HOPEFULS...

CHAMPIONSHIP HONOR AT STAKE-- These Greeneview High School baseball hopefuls are out to keep a string alive. The Rams haven't been defeated by another

Greene County team in two years. The first action scheduled this season is in a round-robin on April 25. (Guardian Photo.)

SPRING TRAINING TIME

Open Diamond Trials

Sunny skies have sprouted mits and clubs and spikes at the diamond of Greeneview High school. And the Rams this year again pose as the biggest target in sight of many an area mound crew. The Rams haven't been defeated in Greene County competition in the last two years. They have copped the county tourney for two years running and have been to the district the last three years.

Coach Donald Nock currently is working with a host of aspirants for jobs left open by a contingent of graduates which is going on to bigger things. Ned Pettit, Bucky James and Kenneth Reed all are in line for possible big league competition one of these days.

They've left behind them a good foundation on which Coach Nock may be building another county championship.

It also may be a team which could reach further into the realm of tournament competition. Greeneview's only loss last year was to Lewisburg in the district tournament.

There will be a round robin April 23 and 25 to determine who makes the district tourney trip this year. The first game will be between Cedarville and Bellbrook April 23. Greeneview, because of its standing for the past season, drew a bye and will play the winner of the first game on April 25. Both first and second place teams will enter district competition.

Regular season hurling opens at the Jamestown diamond March 28 when the Rams host the Buccaneers of Xenia Central High School.

The season's second tangle is April 2 with Bowersville

On Guard With Gerard

Taking a trip? Most people do not carry protection against loss of personal effects from their automobile--either because of theft or accident.

Reason is that, generally, folks don't have a lot of personal items piled up in their buggy while driving around home.

But that picture changes in a hurry when you stack up the family buggy either for a vacation jaunt or a business jaunt. Clothing, cameras, baggage, a hundred and one things are all of a sudden enclosed in the family chariot.

And it's a good bet that the amount of wealth represented therein is more than your stay-at-home insurance can absorb.

That is where the beauty of a short-term policy to cover your personal effects and baggage during the days of your trip becomes apparent. Even more attractive is the cost.

Insurance was primarily designed for protection and this is one of the best investments you can make in just that: Protection.

Guidance Center Can Make Home School Life Better

"There are five areas in which a child guidance clinic could add to the emotional comfort of the people of Greene County," Dr. Lester W. Sontag, director of the Fels Research Institute for the Study of Human Development, has stated.

"There are, first of all, in the schools children who are bright but who are not accomplishing. There are also children who, because of their own emotional discomfort, are expressing their hostility in aggression and disruption to the detriment of the school and the staff of the school.

"There are parents whose lives and homes are made much less satisfying by aggression, withdrawal, or delinquent behavior on the part of their children.

"There are children themselves who see the world as a hostile and threatening environment which frightens them and which they must fight.

"There are the members of the medical profession who are frustrated because of their inability to relieve this particular kind of discomfort on the part of parents with troubled children.

Then finally there are the law enforcement officers with the problem of juvenile delinquency in a county not big enough to have a full scale juvenile court with the psychiatric social workers necessary to handle problems of these juveniles. These law enforcement officers are forced, not through lack of sympathy but through the lack of facilities, to handle problems of delinquency in ways that are not optimally effective.

"For each of these: the school, the parent, the child himself, the medical doctor, and the court official, the proposed clinic is a source of understanding, professional aid."

In addition to his position at Fels, Dr. Sontag is a member of the Department of Psychiatry of the Medical Faculties of the University of Louisville, and the University of Cincinnati. He has had special training in child Psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University.

Moody Films Scheduled By Church

The Baptist Young People's Fellowship Hour of the Grace Baptist Church of Cedarville will show another of a series of Moody Institute of Science films Sunday at 6:15 p.m. in the Milner Chapel of the Cedarville College.

The film to be shown, "The God of Creation," explains in interesting, easy-to-understand language, the marvels of astronomy, natural science and the microscopic world. Awe-inspiring scenes disclose the size and number of the heavenly bodies.

The hand of God in nature is demonstrated by photosynthesis, the mysterious food-manufacturing process that takes place within the tiny cells of leaves. Fascinating lapse-time photography shows buds becoming full-blown blossoms in a few seconds.

By means of ingenious photomicrography, the fabulous realm beneath the microscope is brought into view.. living organisms which inhabit that world are enlarged millions of times. Delving into the mysteries of life itself, this motion picture illustrates the power and wisdom of God in creation.

There is no admission charge and the public is invited to attend.

Russell Mason is slowly improving at his home, near Bowersville.

He Has The Right To A Savings Account

If you are wise, you'll open a Savings Account here in your baby's name as soon as he is born. And if you are prudent, you'll add to that account regularly every payday. The amount of your deposits can be small—$2, $3, $5—but be sure to make them regularly, without fail.

In this way you will be sure your child will have the advantages you want him to have: college, travel, perhaps a professional education.

Do you know that the interest alone on a $5 a week savings program, started when your child is 2, will provide enough money for an entire year of college?

Deere Readers:
I hope every one of you will drive down to Paintersville to see the plowing job that Russell Pickering is doing with his new 70 diesel. Russell has combined a couple of operations so successfully that we feel that this will catch on with a lot of other farmers as soon as they see how it is done. We hooked a section of harrow behind his three-bottom plow and automatically eliminated the necessity for that rough ride over freshly plowed ground to drag it down. We've seen this done before but feel that the finished work here was the best that we've ever seen. We also know that the ground will not dry out and get cloddy as is often the case, particularly when the ground is plowed while it is a little wet. We think this is an approach to the ultimate in economy--not only of fuel but also of labor and time. It makes us wonder after riding an outfit with this convenience and power what our next improvements might possibly be.
